Actor Joel Kinnaman, who will appear in the upcoming fourth season of “House of Cards” and the summer blockbuster “Suicide Squad,” has put his home in the Hollywood Hills West area on the market for $2.795 million.

Offering a mix of contemporary and Mediterranean style, the multilevel home has open-plan interiors, rich oak floors and a living room with a concrete hearth and fireplace. A wall of glass takes in the grounds and views extending from Century City to the ocean.

A dining area, a great room, an updated kitchen, three bedrooms and three bathrooms are within the 2,542 square feet of white-walled space.

The Mediterranean-inspired contemporary in Hollywood Hills West has three bedrooms and three bathrooms in more than 2,500 square feet of space.

The master suite has a fireplace, a walk-in closet and a bathroom done in tumbled stone. Another suite has a fireplace and a balcony overlooking the grounds.

Glass doors off the main level open to a square pool set within a brick patio. An outdoor sitting area, lawns and landscaping complete the setting.

Kinnaman bought the house two years ago for $2.245 million, records show. Actor-turned-developer Roger Davis of “Dark Shadows” fame is another former homeowner.

Tami Pardee and Justin Alexander of Pardee Properties hold the listing.

Kinnaman, 36, has appeared in such films as “Safe House” (2012), “RoboCop” (2014) and “Run All Night” (2015). The drama series “The Killing” is among his television credits.
