

Got Books? A New, Library-Friendly Jae Omar Project In Venice, $7.1M

By Philip Ferrato / 06/08/18

Photographs Courtesy of Brando Arant

Where: 2919 Sanborn Avenue, Venice

When: Sunday, June 10 from 2:00-5:00pm

Asking: $7,100,000

What: Another high-end speculative project in Venice— this time by designer Jae Omar— that exceeds expectations with spaces that are both warm and grandly proportioned. With beautiful detailing, the end result is a kind of serenity that looks easy but is rarely achieved.

Setting the tone just inside the entry is a library/study.

What We Love: How the hearth continues along the wall.

With sliding walls of glass, a corner of the main space has been cut off to shelter the spa.

In luxe projects like this, the guest bath/powder room is not an afterthought.

At the top of the stairs, another contemplative space and a view of Venice, room for books and plenty of privacy for the bedrooms. The master suite is huge, with the spa bath buyers have come to expect.

More: Go to the listing for additional details and images, plus a video that really tells the story best, and includes drone shots of the sexy roof deck. Represented by Penny Muck at Halton Pardee.

<http://www.californiahomedesign.com/property/2018/06/08/got-books-new-library-friendly-jae-omar-project-venice-71m>